

Center for GLOBAL EDUCATION and EXPERIENCE

November 2015

Dear Parents:

Greetings from the Center for Global Education and Experience (CGEE) at Augsburg College. We are pleased that your student will be a participant in "Social Change in Central America: Exploring Peace, Justice and Community Engagement" this coming semester. You can find an electronic version of the program manual that was sent participants at <https://web.augsburg.edu/global/APA/Manuals/CAS16.pdf>. In particular please note the information about communication (telephone, mailing address, etc.) in the General Information section.

Students will be living in a variety of accommodations during the semester. In Guatemala, they spend three weeks with an urban family in the western highland city of Quetzaltenango and one week in a homestay with an Indigenous Mayan family. In Costa Rica, students spend a few days in a San Jose guest house and then live with families southeast of the city. In Nicaragua, they initially live in our study center and then spend four weeks with a local family in Managua. There will also be a three-night rural homestay. We have competent, well-experienced staff in all three countries who will provide excellent leadership during the program. In addition to the resident staff in each country, a Study Abroad Facilitator will be traveling with the group throughout the term. (See the Faculty section in the program manual.)

Two concerns that are frequently expressed when it is learned that the students will travel to Central America are health and safety. Please be assured that the safety of our program participants is of the highest priority, and at this crucial time we monitor the situation in Central America even more carefully. Basic recommendations on personal safety and health are given in the program manual, and more detailed information is provided to students during orientation in each country. Additionally, we keep a very close watch on the situation Central America. CGEE has permanent staff in Guatemala and Nicaragua, consultants and other numerous resource persons in the region with whom we keep in close contact. We monitor security issues through regular contact with our on-site staff who are, in turn, in contact with U.S. Embassies. Through the Association of International Educators we regularly receive and share comparative security information with others in the field of international education. Additionally, our medical and emergency services provider, Educational and Institutional Insurance Administrators, Inc., sends us weekly and sometimes daily reports on world "hot spots" in real time as they arise. Finally, we register students with the U.S. State Department and regularly visit their web page to remain abreast of the most current travel warnings and public announcements throughout the world.

In the past 33 years, the Center has led more than 1,200 trips throughout the global south for over 10,000 participants, and have therefore gained a great deal of experience traveling in these regions. We would not hesitate to cancel or to re-route any portion of the program should something occur that made it appear unsafe to travel there. For example, when the U.S. State Department issued a travel warning for El Salvador, we moved our programming to Costa Rica. Please contact me if you have further questions or concerns.

As far as health is concerned, many students will have to endure a bout or two of diarrhea sometime during their stay, but reasonable precautions in eating and food preparation can minimize the occurrence of this "discomfort." Our staff will be instructing the students about preventive measures, as well as what to do during the family stay.

In the case of a more serious illness, there are good doctors and hospitals in Guatemala, Nicaragua and Costa Rica if a situation calls for professional health care. Insurance is also provided through the program (see Insurance Information in the Health and Safety Matters section of the manual).

As you may realize, the experience your student is about to have is a very intense and challenging one. For many, the study abroad experience will stimulate a great deal of reflection about personal values and life directions, and you may notice changes upon return home. Your student will likely want to share all the adventures with you and may, at times, find it difficult to communicate the intensity of the experience. An accepting and open environment will make it easier to share and integrate the experience.

I look forward to working with both you and your student, and welcome any questions or concerns you might have.

Sincerely,

Margaret M. Anderson
