Commissioned Art Opportunities for Augsburg College’s
Hagfors Center for Science, Business, and Religion

About Augsburg College
Set in a vibrant neighborhood at the heart of the Twin Cities, Augsburg College offers more than 50 undergraduate majors and nine graduate degrees to nearly 3,500 students of diverse backgrounds. The trademark of an Augsburg education is its emphasis on direct, personal experience. Guided by the faith and values of the Lutheran church, Augsburg educates students to be informed citizens, thoughtful stewards, critical thinkers, and responsible leaders. Augsburg demonstrates its commitments through the work of four signature centers: the Christensen Center for Vocation, the Center for Global Education, the Sabo Center for Citizenship and Learning, and the Strommen Center for Meaningful Work.

About the Hagfors Center for Science, Business, and Religion (HCSBR)
As the centerpiece of the Augsburg Campus Space and Master Plan (2011), this signature building—its siting, design, construction and its ultimate use by the community—will set a new expectation for the entire campus as it illustrates a sense of beauty, harmony with place, and commitment to hospitality. The Hagfors Center for Science, Business, and Religion is scheduled to open in 2017, will feature a variety of original works of art by talented artists in the region, as well as artists with a strong connection to Augsburg College. The HCSBR will not simply blend into the current campus, but shall be the lever for expressing the college’s aspirations for a 21st century urban campus. Connected to Augsburg’s core identity of deep traditions, durable faith, inclusion and experiential learning, there are several guiding principles for the College’s Art and Identity initiative:

• It will have a bias toward enhancing the student experience, reflecting Augsburg’s vision to be a “new kind of student-centered urban university, small to our students and big for the world."
• It will express in its design and in artistic and concrete ways throughout the building a firm belief in the intersections and fluidity of boundaries between the academic disciplines resident in the building, as well as others across campus.
• It will express in many ways Augsburg’s identity as a Lutheran Christian institution, firm in its faith tradition even as it engages in deep hospitality with those of other faiths and with its community.
• The review and selection process will engage a dedicated team of volunteers representing diverse perspectives (the Arts + Identity Committee).
Invitational Request for Qualifications (RFQ)

Augsburg College has engaged Forecast Public Art to facilitate the commissioning of art works for the new Hagfors Center for Science, Business, and Religion. You are among a select group of artists who are hereby invited to submit qualifications to be considered for this opportunity.

Following the selection process, a group of up to 20 artists will be selected to create artworks for wall spaces throughout the new Hagfors Center, responding to one or more of the following disciplines housed in the building:

- Biology
- Chemistry
- Physics
- Religion
- Business
- Psychology
- Computer Science
- Math

Finalists will receive a stipend of $500 to develop concepts for commissioned works to be installed at sites throughout the building, adjacent to the areas where each discipline is housed. Implementation of each proposed project will be contingent on funds being raised by Augsburg. The creation of compelling designs and thoughtful proposals will play a critical role in the development phase.

A variety of two-dimensional and relief media are desired, including painting, printmaking, photography, collage, textile, ceramic tile, glass, wood, metals, etc. Works will range in size, including framed artworks to large-scale wall pieces and serial works. Each artwork must be designed to respond to one or more of the disciplines listed above, serve the goals of the building, and create a welcoming environment that encourages exploration and inquiry.

Selection Criteria

Selection of finalists will be based on the following criteria:

- Letter of interest
- Quality of work samples
- Ability of artist/team, as evidenced in biographical materials

Eligibility
